Shooting at Garden City.

Robert McCartney, a passenger on an immigrant train, was killed at Garden City on the 9th inst. The train stopped there for dinner, and McCartney had a dispute with a lunch boy about the purchase of a plate of pickles, McCartney claiming the plate. The boy threw a pickle at McCartney, whereupon the latter knocked the boy down. The boy's cries drew the attention of citizens who interfered. McCartney fired two shots at Mr. Pagan, both shots missing him. The enraged immigrant was standing on the car platform and again fired. This time the citizens were armed and prepared for the murderous passenger, when Col.
